About This Game

Dragon Souls will allow you to play as a dragon in one of the available dragon flights: Black, Red, Green, Blue. The goal is simply collecting all of the relics scattered throughout the world. But, with denizens, cities, and other dragons out to take these same items from you, it's easier said than done.

The denizens of our world have no hope of standing against you. Your only real threat will be other dragons, which, of course, want the same thing you want and are willing to kill you for it.

This is a game about playing as a truly terrifying dragon, not lumbering reptiles with wings and one slow/avoidable attack. You should expect to always be on your toes, quickly moving and positioning while using a myriad of attacks. All of these abilities will be made more powerful with leveling and the expansion of your dragon's power.

Each player is in control of a single dragon which can battle in air or on land. Our combat system is fast paced and involves physical, magical, and ranged combat. As with other similar games, certain combinations of spells and abilities will naturally synergize. Can you find these combinations to maximize your progress, or will you be dominated by the other players?

What will your reign of terror be like?

THE POWER OF GOLD

All dragons love gold - but the root of this love is more than just fascination - it is the source of all your power. As you collect gold your dragon will increase in power, level, and size.

This is your most significant resource and is earned by killing denizens and their dwellings. The cities and the travelers between them must be "liberated" of their burden so you can gain power. To best leverage resource acquisition, you will need to prioritize your attacks to maximize your power growth.

Of course, other dragons also have significant gold you could take... if you can defeat them.

IMPROVING ABILITIES

Every player will have four tiers of abilities to choose from for each dragon type, with several abilities in each tier, providing roughly 56 unique dragon abilities at the launch of the game. Only one ability can be chosen per tier, so the possible combinations of play will vary significantly. Once the abilities are chosen, they will only become available at certain levels.

COLLECTING RELICS

Throughout the world, there are random relics scattered about. These relics are the claim to the throne for the dragon world. Once all relics are returned to a dragon's den, the game is won and the conqueror crowned. But be careful as you collect the relics, since they have a way of drawing in your competition. For every one you possess, you become easier for other players to find you, even from far away places.

The greatest part about Relics is how they can help you. They aren't just items of "great power" you can never use. Instead, each relic grants a special ability which you can assign to your dragon at any time during the match. Only 4 relics can be selected for activation at a time and will be lost if you die. So, be careful of which relics you choose to keep with you.

Some boards may have only 5 or 6 relics, while others may contain more than 20. Using the abilities on the "fly" and altering your play style to best leverage your abilities and available relics is the key to winning this game.

COMPETING DRAGONS

Of course, all other dragons are seeking more power as well. So, you will often fight other dragons to rob them of their horde and remove them from the running.

But, don't worry too much. Provided you make it back to your Den, you can stay in it briefly. You leave your den fully healed and will have a "gold buff" on you which increases your power significantly. You will be limited on how frequently you can enter your den.

FUTURE PLANS

We have many ideas on how this game could evolve into a much greater game, but first we want to get player feedback and get the initial concept published. Here are some of our ideas. Please make sure to let us know how you feel about each of them. We invite the feedback.

Factions

Each dragon starts in a particular faction. The denizens of that faction will be friendly, so dragons would need to travel to other factions to gain gold. Possibly introduce a partnership with denizens for gathering by launching raiding parties against other dragon dens.

Team Play

Solo play has it's problems. Some form of team play is planned for the future. This may be accomplished solely through factions, maybe more.

Questing

A good quest line can build an amazing story. Plan to see Elder Dragons doling out quests with deep story.

Denizen Riders

What better way to have new abilities introduced than by dragon riders there to help. Archers, mages, who knows...
